Poor Brian and Sal Charlton even tidied up in anticipation of the influx of SAMmers after a great run to be led by the inscrutable and all-knowing Dave Preest (probably off-road and breathtakingly scenic given his past form).

Alas, as the snow settled gently on Gloucestershire and surrounds, every single SAMmer stayed resolutely tucked in bed.

What time do those slack SAMmers think it is?!

More for us then Sal... Cheers!

BEWSC was deserted!
Not even the hardy GSs were game to venture out.

Not easily put off, Sal had Brian out on the deck in his skimpiest summer shorts and T-shirt, warming up the barbie. At least it kept the worst of the snow at bay... ♦
